Attempt feedback

This is a great report that is clearly structured and presented in a professional way. You describe the different phases of your project with clarity and make good use of data visualisations to communicate your findings. The discussion of your results is effective and shows a sound understanding of their meaning and implications. A particular strength of your submission is the attention you give to methodology and reproducibility. By documenting your approach, repository structure, and code, you demonstrate good practice in transparency. However, while including scripts as examples can be useful in some contexts, it is not necessary to include everything within the report itself. A more effective approach would be to direct the reader to your GitHub repository, where they can inspect and make use of the scripts directly. This would keep the report focused, while still allowing your technical work to be accessible.

One area for improvement is that the report ends somewhat abruptly. Including a short discussion, conclusion, or summary would have helped round off your work and emphasise the key insights and their implications. Your self-appraisal is honest and insightful, showing both awareness of your developing skills and growing confidence in applying them. Overall, this is a strong and professional submission.

Host feedback:

Ijeoma, you were excellent. You did a fabulous job with infectious passion. You are a very hardworking and highly talented student. You needed to be confident in your skills, and your confidence grew week by week. You were highly professional and did all the tasks expected of you. At times, you were nervous when it wasn't required, as you were working constantly at a good pace. But soon after speaking with us, you were racing ahead with your tasks. We understand that the task we assigned to you is complex, so we appreciate your request for reassurance. In the future, we recommend keeping faith in your ability. Just see the skills you gained and the amount of work you did. You were brilliant. It was a pleasure working with you, and you will be missed. We wish you all the best! Maintain professionalism and communication as you have, and continue to foster flexibility and self-driven learning. Additionally, your skills, both as a team player and an independent worker, were commendable.
